a publication of the Arizona Dance Coalition

Volume 2, Issue 4

April 2012

Dear Readers,

National Dance Week is April 20-29 and this month the US Postal Service releases the Innovative Choreographers Forever stamps collection featuring Isadora Duncan, José Limón, Katherine Dunham and Bob Fosse. This would be a good time to send invitations via snail mail to your event, company rehearsals or studio open house. Or to send that important Thank You to your sponsors and promoters. Which brings me to ShowUp.com. What happened? I've lost my source for regional dance events. I'll have to investigate.

ADC member Ann Ludwig is celebrating her company's 35th anniversary and our member spotlight shines on A Ludwig Dance Theatre. Looking Back; Moving Forward, their performance, is April 19-22 (see pgs 4, 11) and ADC member tickets are $12 (discounted). Lisa Chow, ADC president, reports on the Governor's Arts Award ceremony (pg 15-16) and this month's article covers my adventure in LinkedIN over the past few weeks supplying many wonderful links full of information and entertainment!

Free events are indicated by the red, bold "FREE." ADC thanks Scottsdale Performing Arts Center for providing members a BOGO offer for the Chunky Move: Connected performance April 6-7.

ADC is looking for board members throughout the state that would be willing to work on behalf of the organization in developing its member services, public relations, and event planning/implementation. Experience in communication (all media - networking, writing, design, production) required. Roving (dancing) reporters are welcome to submit events and reviews for the e-Star. Take time to enjoy this issue...especially the costume tip! (grin)

April 5, Thursday, 8:30-10 pm, Paula Carr Dance Academy, 3310 N Hayden Rd, #103, Scottsdale. House Movement with Special Guest Coflo from Soul Shifters/The Circle of Fire.

Cody "Coflo" Ferreira, Bay Area Cali native, is a music lover first and dancer second. His love for music drove him to the feel good movement of dance at a very young age. Some 16 years later the feeling and forever growing community continues to keep him moving. Coflo, a student of house dance legend Brian "Footwork" Green, has studied various forms of dance but is most recognized for his footworking based house dance style. Coflo dances with a pioneering crew that calls themselves "The Circle of Fire." He also belongs to an emerging and wide spread artistry collective called "The Soulshifters." Coflo feels dancers should study the subject of music the same way a musician studies music, after all it is music that the dancers seek to begin with. He has a strong belief in the essence of freestyle movement/thought within dance. With the core of his foundation being based in New York House Dance, a freestyle dance, he tries to embody a night club feeling no matter the stage he steps on. When teaching Coflo uses a lot of traditional music theory coupled with various philosophies that he has adopted through the years of being exposed to many amazing dancers, musicians and martial artists. Coflo's fundamental take on dance, in any style, is to be prolific. Much like in every day life, to achieve mastery in anything requires more time than most of us have; you must continue to push with positivity and an open mind while developing your craft.

MEMBER SPOTLIGHT: A Ludwig Dance Theatre

Organized in 1977 in California by director Ann Ludwig (right), A Ludwig Dance Theatre moved to Tempe in 1979 and began its ongoing Arizona involvement with creating and community. The New York Times wrote: “Ludwig’s pieces careen through a wide assortment of female responses in theatre-dance that has all the ragged, irrational reasonableness of life lived slightly below the polite formalities.”

As astute observer of human behavior, Ludwig’s work surrounds one with quality of life issues which explore domestic violence, homelessness, women and men’s roles in society, drug and alcohol abuse, gender preferences, ravages of war, aging, love, marriage, divorce and Alzheimer’s disease, as well as the sheer joy of dancing with flavors from swing, tango, waltz and country. More recent awards, Ann received the Presidents Award from National Dance Education Organization and Arizona Dance Education Organization (2010). Last year (2011) Ludwig received the Governor’s Award for Arts in Education presented by The Arizona Commission on the Arts, Alliance for Audience, and the Office of the Governor.

From 1979-2003 Ann taught at Arizona State University where she is a council member of the Emeritus College. Ann was also a founding director of the Arizona Dance Coalition.

It is the philosophy of A Ludwig Dance Theatre that whether engaging a room full of first graders or pushing the boundaries for an adult audience, the ease of performance and the humor of the moment goes a long distance in enticing even the most wary into a conversation with the dance.

It is this sense of considering the unconsidered that has driven a great deal of the thinking of director and choreographer Ann Ludwig. A believer in co-joining all the arts, A Ludwig Dance Theatre has collaborated with artists, composers, sculptors, symphonies, actors, writers, costume artists, musicians, videographers, dancers of all genres and all ages, performing artists, an attorney and a judge, and a chef! Over the past 35 years, A Ludwig Dance Theatre work has been seen in cities and towns throughout Arizona, across the US and Germany, as well as residencies in 10 cities and villages in Portugal under the sponsorship of the US Embassy in Lisbon.

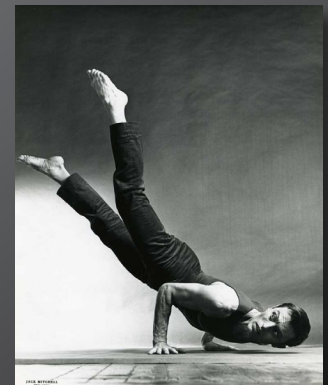

The April concert (pg 4) reflects the journey A Ludwig Dance Theatre has traveled for 35 years! The concert will include three works from the ‘80s and early ‘90s, and a new collaborative piece with guest choreographers and a process of determining the order of three sections with text messaging from the audience. Someone, choreographed by the late Daniel Nagrin, will be performed by David Barker. You are invited!

Scorpius Dance Theatre's "Kick-A" Choreographer Auditions

Scorpius Dance Theatre is on the hunt for the best choreographers in the U.S. This summer, Scorpius' Director Lisa Starry is staging Kick-A – a unique dance showcase promoting amazing dance makers. Starry is requesting submissions from up-and-coming and established choreographers looking for an opportunity to show the Arizona dance community what they're made of. Inspired by LA and NYC's The Carnival: Choreographers Ball, this production will feature aspiring and well-known choreographers who will have an opportunity to express their creativity by combining mainstream dance, popular music, video productions, and more to create an upbeat, highly energetic show that will appeal to dance enthusiasts and newbies.

Focusing on modern, contemporary and hip hop dance, Starry will select a variety of choreographers in Kick-A, May 3-5 at Phoenix Little Theatre. LinkedIn ~ A Connection To So Much More Than Someone's Resumé

Are you LinkedIn? I am. And last month I joined a few discussion groups: Teachers of Classical Ballet, Dance Writers, Dance Teachers/Studio Owners and Dance Historians Network. There are a few more groups I want to join, but they may not be active at this time. Here's some background on LinkedIn:

As of February 9, 2012, LinkedIn operates the world's largest professional network on the Internet with more than 150 million members in over 200 countries and territories. Sixty percent of the members are located outside of the US (as of December 31, 2011) and did nearly 4.2 billion professionally-oriented searches on the platform in 2011. Headquartered in Mountain View, CA, it also has US offices in Chicago, LA, NY, Omaha and San Francisco. International LinkedIn offices are located in Amsterdam, Bangalore, Delhi, Dublin, London, Madrid, Melbourne, Milan, Mumbai, Munich, Paris, São Paulo, Singapore, Stockholm, Sydney, Tokyo and Toronto. The company's management team is comprised of seasoned executives from companies like Yahoo!, Google, Microsoft, TiVo, PayPal and Electronic Arts. The CEO of LinkedIn is Jeff Weiner. LinkedIn is currently available in 16 languages: English, Czech, Dutch, French, German, Indonesian, Italian, Japanese, Korean, Malay, Portuguese, Romanian, Russian, Spanish, Swedish and Turkish. As of December 31, 2011, LinkedIn has 2,116 full-time employees located around the world and it started off 2011 with about 1,000 full-time employees located across the globe, up from around 500 at the beginning of 2010. I'm writing to you about LinkedIn because I have thoroughly enjoyed the ballet groups with discussions led by Andrew Greenwood (onlineballetclass.com), Demetri Roudnev and Philip S Rosemond to name just a few. You, too, may find discussions about plié, battement tendu, ronde jambe par terre and stance enlightening and entertaining! It is a good way to start the day if teaching ballet is on your agenda.

Another discussion was about favorite links and blogs. I promised to post them here for all of you to sample: tendusunderapalmtree.com, mikebarnesanth.wordpress.com, tightsandtiaras.com, thehealthydancer.blogspot.com, danceanywhere.org/participate/, dancehealthier.com, accessdanceforlife.com, thebodyseries.com, nycdancestuff.wordpress.com/, tchaikovsky-research.org/, YouTube Ballet History Clip \(very good\), Salt Lake City's Ballet West will star in reality TV show, Bolshoi Ballet and New Dance Studio Software – Trial. It will take you a while to visit and study all these, but it will be worth the effort. I had my students view the Ballet History Clip and they loved it.

Technology discussions are also great, especially now that I have the iPad! I've already written about the Amazing Slowdowner (previous e-Star tip). My "tip" this issue is on how to type French accents on a MAC or PC (see pg 16). I invite you to get "LinkedIn" and be an ADC member!

31st Annual Governor's Arts Awards by Lisa R. Chow, ADC President

The 31st Annual Governor's Arts Awards was held on Tuesday, March 27 at the Herberger Theater Center in downtown Phoenix. This event is the largest annual statewide gathering of arts and culture supporters in our state. Presented by the Arizona Citizens for the Arts, the Arizona Commission on the Arts and the Office of the Governor, these awards celebrate the extraordinary contributions of artists, arts organizations, businesses, educators and individuals to the quality of life in our state.

The celebration began at 5 pm with a reception featuring a Silent Auction. During the reception, a surprise flashmob lead by Desert Dance Theatre and Step's Junk Funk directors, Lisa R. Chow and Step Raptis appeared from opposite street corners in front of the Herberger Theatre Center. It was hard not to notice the flashmobbers when they marched and danced playing syncopated rhythms on Samsonite suitcases which was part of Step's Junk Funk repertory called "Samsonite." The performers ranged in ages from 16-60+. Later, the flashmob performance continued on stage at 7 pm, preceding the opening speech by Governor Jan Brewer. At the end of the awards ceremony, the evening ended with dessert and music.

The annual presentation is much more than a tradition. The awards reflect three decades of the best in Arizona's arts and culture community and the magnificent contributions they've made to our state's arts and cultural heritage.

Each honoree received a custom-designed award created annually by Arizona artists or an arts organization presented in the Oscar-style award ceremony. (List of winners on the next page.) We are especially proud of the award recipients who made large contributions and strides to the field of dance.

Colleen Jennings-Roggensack was a former dancer and choreographer before her career as an arts administrator and presenter. She has been presenting the performing arts for 33 years and will celebrate her 20th anniversary as Executive Director for ASU Gammage and Assistant Vice President for Cultural Affairs in June. Her leadership and her mission at ASU has been to "Connect Communities" by enabling patrons, artists and the entire community to discover new avenues of intercultural communication through the arts. Under her leadership, the Broadway series has grown into one of the top touring markets in the nation producing an annual economic impact of $40 million in the Valley. Jennings-Roggensack was nominated by President Clinton and served on the National Council on the Arts from 1994 to 1997. Since 2007, she has served on The Broadway League's Board of Governors and she is Arizona's only Tony Award voter.

Beth Lessard, Ph.D. was the chair of the ASU Dance Department from 1977 to 1993 and professor until her retirement in 1999. Dr. Lessard elevated the dual degree path for dancers interested in both teaching and creating and performing dance. Under her guidance, the Arizona Dance Education Organization was formed to provide resources, scholarships and educational support for Arizona teachers and schools to provide quality dance curriculum. She also established the artist-in-residence program at ASU to bring national dance artists and companies to Tempe to teach, collaborate and perform with students and faculty.

COSTUME TIP

by Marlina Kessler

Easter: An adult lamb costume. (Seriously?) Here are some hints to make sure your costume won't be baa-aa-aad: If you have that merino rug, drape it around yourself and wear some black socks or boot tops as well as black gloves. (Seriously?)

TYPING "ACCENTS" TIP

by Krystyna Parafinczuk

Ballet terminology—when teaching vocabulary to students or recording choreography—is challenging when it comes to typing/keyboarding because of the accents. Here is a webpage that provides the KEYS to typing accents on a MAC or PC - Typing Accents on a Computer
