Dear Readers,

A year ago we were preparing to vote smART. A year later we can enroll in an "imperfect" but better healthcare system (pg 26). If everyone danced, think how healthy they would be and the health insurance companies would be charging significantly lower premiums. (ADVIL stock would go up!)

UA Jazz Dance Showcase, Mediterranean Nights Festival, Tucson Meet Yourself Folklife Festival, Arizona Dance Festival and the Dance Festival of Southern Arizona are all taking place before October 21. Then it will be time to put on our "fun" costumes and some suggestions are on the last page (31). This is our biggest issue to date and that's because there is so much more dancing in AZ than before. Please review the events and many are FREE. Look for all the red FREEs in this issue. ASU Gammage is offering ADC members a special rate for the Susan Marshall & Co performance and ADC members will enjoy discounted rates on classes and performances at our festivals. If you are not a member, now is the time to join and save more than the membership costs. (Pg 29-31)

Dance For A Cause is in the Member Spotlight and the Photo of the Month is a University High School (Tucson) alumna—Latricia George. The article is on ballet dancers and why we get less dizzy.

I am very much looking forward to the first Dance Festival of Southern Arizona where 22 dance artists will be performing from Tucson as well as Scottsdale, Chandler, Phoenix & Mesa. Three of the classes have started waiting lists and more registrations are coming in. Classes are open to the public and that doesn't happen often in this town. We thank our sponsors and advertisers (pg 8) and all of you who are helping promote the event. Let's have some fun and look out for all the vampires and dancing skeletons!

Most sincerely,

Krystyna Parafinczuk
Editor & ADC Treasurer

The Arizona Dance Coalition is a membership-based, statewide 501(c)(3) nonprofit dance organization creating connections and communication between the general public and the dance community. October 4, Friday, 12-1 pm. ASU Gammage, 1200 S Forest Ave, Tempe. Susan Marshall & Company ~ Open Rehearsals for ASU Gammage "Beyond" artists are a great way to get a sneak peek at the artists' upcoming performance. During lunch you have the exclusive chance to look behind-the-scenes as the artists and technicians prepare for an upcoming performance. Teachers, bring your classes for a FREE, unique and compelling experience for your students. All rehearsals are limited to groups of 50.

October 5, Saturday, 7 pm. Susan Marshall & Company PLAY/ PAUSE. Marshall embraces the collisions of high art and pop culture to create the ultimate mash-up: post-modern dance-theater meets indie rock on both real and virtual stages. Marshall couples her intimate, structured choreography with the seductiveness of pop culture to explore our complex relationship with the media we consume. The performance is counterpointed by original online music videos, aspects of which are incorporated into the live work. PLAY/PAUSE features an original score by Pulitzer Prize-winning composer David Lang, performed live by the members of the electric guitar quartet Dither and Mantra Percussion, that merges the iconic pop sound of electric guitar with abstract rhythms. October 24- 26, October 31, November 1-2, 7:30 pm; November 2, Saturday 1:30 pm. Stevie Eller Dance Theatre, University of Arizona Campus, 1737 E University Blvd, Tucson. UA presents UA Dance: Premium Blend ~ featuring one of George Balanchine's best known pas de deux's, his sizzling Tarantella, as well as the mesmerizing work of guest choreographer Larry Keigwin. In addition, the UA Dance Ensemble will team up with the Arizona Choir to perform selections from Brahms' Liebeslieder Walzer. Featured choreography by UA Dance faculty will include works by James Clouser, Melissa Lowe, Douglas Nielsen, Michael Williams, and staging by Amy Ernst. Audiences will enjoy Duet Suite (2013), as Douglas Nielsen presents work that he choreographed and danced during his long career as a performer. The suite includes You Are Jeff, Wreck a Pair, and The Music of Regret.

The Tarantella, one of the best known Italian folk dances, stemmed from the popular belief that a victim bitten by a tarantula needed to engage in a frenzied dance to avoid death. This superstition was the inspiration for master choreographer, George Balanchine, when he choreographed Tarantella for the New York City Ballet in 1964. He designed an explosive dance driven by the rollicking music of Louis Moreau Gottschalk to showcase the talents of dancers Edward Villella and Patricia McBride. Adult $29, Senior, Military $26, UA Employee, Student $15. Tickets go on sale Oct 7. 520-621-1162, Credit card orders only.

October 25-26, Friday-Saturday, 7:30 pm. The ZUZI! Theater in the Historic Y, 738 N 5th Ave, Tucson. ZUZI! Dance Company, School & Theater presents its fall, bi-annual No Frills Dance Happenin'. A variety of performers throughout Tucson and Southern Arizona come to share fresh and innovative works from various stages of the creative process. The works range from serious to silly and some are presented here for the first time. Performances on the ground and in the air are interspersed with the off-the-wall antics of ZUZI!'s lovable MC Carie Schneider. Tickets $10.

Master Classes / Workshops

October 1, Tuesday, 6-7:30 pm. Dance Theater West, 3925 E Indian School Rd, Phoenix. FREE Master Class by Luke Miller (from Susan Marshall & Company). Sponsored by ASU Gammage, Co-hosted by Dance Theater West and the Arizona Dance Coalition.

Collaborative Methods in Dance Making

This class, aimed at both choreographers and dancers, offers several approaches for generating movement in collaborative environments. Using improvisation, composition, and performance skills, we will simulate a “mini-process” in order to explore ways of generating phrases, manipulating material, and creating dances.

The world renowned Susan Marshall & Company's repertory is an innovative body of work that blends virtuosic athleticism, ordinary movement, and gesture. The Company has a long history of multidisciplinary collaboration, with over 40 works made in collaboration with musicians, visual artists, and designers. For more information about the Susan Marshall & Company: www.sumac.org; <http://www.DesertDanceTheatre.org>

General News & Announcements

PHOENIX/TUCSON — Over the summer, Phoenix-based Tap 24.7, co-directed by Suzy Guarino and Jenefer Miller, was invited to perform in the 22nd Annual "All That Tap," the final professionals showcase held at the end of the week-long St. Louis Tap Festival produced by the Robert L. Reed Tap Heritage Institute. It was an incredible experience to share the stage with such amazing tap artists as Karen Calloway Williams, Denise Caston, Danny Wooten, Logan Miller, Avi Miller and Ofer Ben, DeWitt Fleming Jr., Robert L. Reed, Cathie Nicholas (granddaughter of Fayard Nicholas of the Nicholas Brothers) and Jason Samuels Smith. It was an inspiring week with the tap family and Tap 24.7 is keeping that energy and momentum going in Tucson and Phoenix. Current projects include a Phoenix Tap Festival and a new original production hitting the stage May 2014. They are also excited to be bringing their original tap production Just Breathe and Tap On to Seattle this coming January. They will be presenting excerpts from this production in STEP to the Rhythm, DANCE to the Rhythm, October 19, 7 pm, as part of the DANCE FESTIVAL of Southern Arizona. (See pg 6.)

TUCSON — October 15-26. Get Ready to Thrill the World. ### CALL FOR 2 DANCERS CHINA ~ SUMMER 2014

I am the artistic director for a troupe that will perform in China in August 2014. We are slated to give 20 concerts in 30 days in 20 big cities throughout China. Touring cities: Beijing (arrival), Shanghai (Departure), Qingdao, Yantai, Taiyuan, Handan, Zhengzhou, Wuhan, Chongqing, Yichun, Dongguan, Shenzhen, Huizhou, Wenzhou, Ningbo, Kunshan, Wuxi, Zhangjiagang, Changzhou, MaAnshan, Hefei & Huhehot (Tour itinerary to be finalized in March, 2014).

Performers (this includes myself) will have transportation, room and board provided, but will not be paid. This will be a cultural tour, and will present American musical traditions ranging from Celtic influences to 19th century tunes, fiddle music from the 1920s & '30s, southern Appalachian old-time string band music (clawhammer banjo & fiddle driven) traditional cowboy music as well as music of the Silver Screen cowboys (Sons of the Pioneers, etc), traditional jazz and western swing music and traditional (older styles) country music.

There will be 8 or 9 musicians, two dancers (one male and one female preferred), and a tour manager. The band has been selected and (with one exception) consists of experienced professional musicians with ample national and international touring experience.

Much of the kind of music that will be presented in concert is rhythmic-based dance

I am looking for two skilled dancers who can do the authentic dances and create their own choreography so that the dance portion will be a visually stimulating addition to the program.

music, and there are specific dances that are associated with these various styles of music. Celtic jigs, hornpipes & reels all have their traditional steps, clog and buck dancing, dance styles associated with ragtime-era music, waltz, schottische, two step, all these and more are part of the cultural heritage that will be portrayed. I am looking for two skilled dancers who can do the authentic dances and create their own choreography so that the dance portion will be a visually stimulating addition to the program. Costuming would need to be appropriate to the genre and time period, so there would be costume changes throughout the show.

All the information that I currently have is provided by the tour organizer, a Chinese born violinist from Tucson who has organized several such cultural tours. Two years ago I did one of his tours with The American Festival Orchestra. The previous tour was well organized, and they treated us well. They were good hosts. We stayed in good hotels in large cities (3 million or more population), ate well (mostly hotel food), and had opportunities for chaperoned tourism. The theaters we performed in were large, ranging in size from a high school auditorium to something like the Chandler Center for the Arts or Phoenix Symphony Hall. The organizer has indicated that the hotels and theaters would be comparable to the previous tour I was on.

If you are a skilled dancer interested in participating, please contact Peter Rolland by email at peterrolland@cox.net. You can also leave a telephone message at 480-969-9744. If you leave a phone message, please also send an email.

New ARTiculations Dance Theatre has created a dance film called Rosemont Ours, with artist/filmmaker Ben Johnson. It is a dance film celebrating the plants and animals of the northern Santa Rita Mountains. A collaboration between New ARTiculations Dance Theatre and visual artist Ben Johnson, the film is, in part, a response to the proposed open-pit copper mine that would impact wildlife and water resources in the region. Dancers researched a range of plant and animal species—common, threatened, and endangered—to create in-situ movement meditations to capture the essences of the species. Work was filmed on location at the site of the proposed Rosemont Copper Mine and the nearby Cienaga Creek, 30 minutes southeast of Tucson.

October 5, Saturday, 6-8 pm. The Drawing Studio, 33 S. 6th Ave, Tucson. First screening will feature comments by the artists and will join paintings and photographs as part of the Drawing Studio's "Seeing the Santa Ritas" exhibit. Other screenings TBA throughout the fall.

New ART raised $7,151 in their Kickstarter Campaign to support this project which enabled them to edit and submit a draft to composers for an original score. Congrats, New ART! More info and upcoming screening dates, visit: www.RosemontOurs.com.

An invitation to the dance community from Deborah Frechette ~

I am writing to inform you about our upcoming Saguaro Ball at Starr Pass on November 2. This will be the third year for this one-day event that offers competition for pro/am, amateur couples and professionals in all ballroom, Latin, country and swing dances. The daytime will include all of the amateur and pro/am competitions. Evening will host amateur teams and a huge variety of professional one-dance, as well as professional multi-dance events. Scholarships and prize money are offered. We will also offer spectator passes for day and/or evening with, or without gourmet meals.

We welcome and encourage dancers of all genres to join the event in the solo category, or for non-ballroom professionals, we suggest you enter whatever style of dance you wish in the "show-dance" category.

Unlike UCWDC and NDCA competitions, we not only allow same-sex partnerships in these events, we encourage them. That includes our professional events. Many of our female instructors are the sole teachers of our female students, so there are almost always same-sex couples present and competing.

We hope to make all Arizona dancers feel welcome to attend and share their dancing with us.

MEMBER SPOTLIGHT

shines on the
Dance for a Cause

Passion with Purpose. At Dance for a Cause (DFAC), a Tucson-based nonprofit organization, we believe each of us can make this world a better place with our particular skills. The members of DFAC celebrate the beauty of life through movement—creating new audiences for dance, while raising funds for organizations serving people with chronic illness or in health-threatening situations. In addition to fundraising, we provide classes and workshops to promote healthy lifestyles, body awareness and positive outcomes.

DFAC performances feature our own choreography, staging and costuming. From fresh takes on Broadway and ballet favorites to contemporary new pieces, DFAC provides a variety of styles. Jazz, tap, lyrical modern, hip-hop, African—they're all on our dance menu.

Past performances have included annual breast cancer benefit shows, dance invitationals of Southern Arizona dance companies and studios, Spring showcases, Holiday celebrations combining traditional favorites with contemporary carols, and community and private events, including ZooLights, Beads of Courage, 2nd Saturdays Downtown Tucson and more. We have raised money for cancer research, patient assistance funds, autism programs, veteran's health services.

Mika Deslongchamps and her aunt, Patte Lazarus, founded the nonprofit organization in 2010. Since then, it has flourished under Mika's direction, expanding programs and integrating more types of dance. In addition to teaching dance full-time at Ballet Rincon and giving private lessons, Mika is a Speech Language Support Specialist for the Vail School District, and travels across the country to attend dance conferences, classes and workshops.

DFAC dancers are talented young men and women who have a passion to keep dancing. They volunteer their time and raise money for costumes. This insures that all proceeds from events go to the beneficiaries. Many of our dancers are students or professionals in other fields, or full-time parents. In addition to dancing, DFAC has also formed a choir—Notes for a Change—that performs at select shows.

Currently DFAC is rehearsing for fall community shows and our Holiday Spectacular. They will also be performing in STEP to the Rhythm, DANCE to the Rhythm, October, 19, 7 pm. (See pg 6.)

For more information or to audition, contact Mika Deslongchamps at 343-5572 or info@dance-4-cause-org.

Ballet Dancers' Brains Adapt to Stop Them Going Dizzy

If you've ever tried spinning in circles while looking up to the sky, you'll know the accompanying dizziness that can follow. But what stops ballet dancers, who pirouette endlessly for a living, from falling into each other like a set of dominoes?

Years of training in "spotting", the technique of quickly and repeatedly bringing your gaze to two specific points in front and behind you, certainly helps, but new research suggests that the brain's ability to adapt plays a powerful role. And it could help better treat and diagnose people who suffer from chronic dizziness.

Neuroscientists at Imperial College London recruited 29 female ballet dancers and spun them around in a chair in a dark room. When the chair was stopped, the dancers were asked to turn a lever to indicate how quickly they still felt they were spinning. This measured their perception response to dizziness. Eye reflexes – the quick flicking of the eyes from moving around rapidly – were also measured. In normal people, these two responses correlate well, but in the dancers there appeared to be an uncoupling: while their eye reflexes kept going, their perception response fell.

A group of 20 female rowers, who were similar in age and fitness, were also recruited as a control group. Brain scans were then taken to analyze the brain structures of all the individuals.

Powerful resistance.

In cases of chronic dizziness, tests are usually taken of the vestibular organs in the inner ear.

*... in dancers an area of the cerebellum was smaller than in the rowers.
... the more experienced the dancer, the smaller it is. The cerebellum reduces the flow of signals (perception) – it acts like a gate.*

These fluid-filled organs use tiny hairs to sense the movement of the fluid, which in turn send signals to the brain. The continued movement of fluid explains one of the reasons you can continue to feel dizzy after you've stopped moving. But this doesn't go far enough to explain dizziness in chronic sufferers, said Barry Seemungal, co-author of the study, published in Cerebral Cortex.

"We measured sensation perception and eye reflexes and found dancers were much more resistant to non-dancers," he said. "In the rowers, sensation correlated very well to reflexes, but in dancers the two were not correlated – they had de-coupled. In a person with chronic dizziness, the duration of their perceptual response is much longer; there's a disproportionately higher reaction compared to a dancer who shows powerful resistance."

An MRI scan then looked at the amount of grey matter (the bit that calculates) and the white matter (the part of the brain that makes connections) in the cerebellum. This also threw up differences between dancers and non-dancers.

"A statistical comparison between brain structures showed that in dancers an area of the cerebellum was smaller than in the rowers. This part of the brain also known to be involved in processing signals from the ear. And the more experienced the dancer, the smaller it is. The cerebellum can process signals that are then sent to areas of the brain linked to perception. In dancers it reduces the flow of signals – it acts like a gate."

The researchers then looked at the cerebral cortex, which is associated in perception, and found stronger white matter in the control group. "More white matter means you're more likely to be dizzy – in dancers we didn't see it," Seemungal said.

Seeing is believing

So how can these findings help people with chronic dizziness? For a start, we now have recognition that the brain is the organ that controls balance and, crucially, that it's able to adapt.

"Traditional testing considers the ear as the organ of balance," Seemungal said. "I'm a neurologist so I consider it as the brain."

"The brain takes in lots of different information to make an assessment and compensates if it needs to. The ear is one source, vision is another. If you hear a noise to the right and move your head to look at it, your brain combines the estimates and places greater weight on the more reliable, in this case the eye."

"But vision can be ambiguous – for example when you're sat on a train and another one moves and you think you're the one moving. As a general principle the brain prioritizes visual motion over vestibular organs [the ear]. Another example is the ventriloquist's doll, it combines the auditory and visual inputs but relies more on the visual so you think it's the doll that's talking."

"If your vestibular organs aren't working well, your brain won't trust them and even trivial visual stimuli can trigger a dizzy sensation. But traditional testing relies on testing the vestibular organs, which might indicate nothing is wrong."

People with chronic dizziness can be treated for underlying causes but also longer-term physio treatment. Depending on the form of the condition, this can include exposing them to self-motion (the swaying we all do but don't notice if we don't suffer from dizziness) and visual motion to get the brain more habituated.

One lucky find (for the researchers anyway) was that one of the dancers involved in the study later went on to develop chronic dizziness. This enabled the team to test her against their original findings. They found that although her reflex functions had remained the same, her perception response had become stronger.

Professor Nicky Clayton, a Professor of Comparative Cognition at Cambridge and Scientist in Residence at Rambert, the contemporary dance company, said: "As a dancer you learn tricks that allow your body to move in very flamboyant ways but without losing control. One of the tricks I learned was that when you get that sense of spinning, you use your core muscles to pull up; and that you're disengaging with that feeling of fluidity and creating a stabilizing energy."

She added: "Dancers think in very abstract ways ... The way in which the brain talks to the cognitive system, whether through its plasticity or psychologically, is more than just spotting. Spotting helps you to focus but it's not the only thing."

Simon Lloyd, an ENT specialist, said: "The tests could potentially be useful because at the moment we have no effective way of testing how well parts of the balance system within the brain are working. Testing this would also allow us to measure how people are responding to treatment."

Health Insurance is No Longer an Artist-Specific Problem

Adam Huttler, Fractured Atlas, Oct 1, 2013, 6:30 am

In 2001, under the guise of the Artists Affordable Healthcare Initiative, Fractured Atlas began offering health insurance to a long underserved population of artists. For decades, non-traditional employment models had put our community at a severe disadvantage in the US health insurance marketplace. With its ambitious promise of a slightly more level playing field, our health insurance program quickly became Fractured Atlas's most visible and popular service. Over 3,000 artists enrolled in our plans, often getting better coverage for less money than would otherwise have been possible.

I'm extremely proud of our work on this front. It certainly hasn't been easy. As vital as our health insurance program was, it was also a constant challenge to maintain and support. More than once (actually, four times!) an insurance company canceled our group policy with little or no notice. We've been attacked by brokers who saw us as a competitive threat and insurance regulators who didn't understand the role we played. But we kept at it, because without Fractured Atlas, many artists (including quite a few with serious medical conditions) would have had no viable options for buying health insurance. Yet, despite all our hard work we remained powerless to address the underlying problem: a health insurance system that was structurally flawed.

Today I can announce - with joy and a faint pang of nostalgia - that Fractured Atlas will no longer be offering health insurance enrollments. The community for which we have advocated for so long is no longer disadvantaged by a health insurance system that could neither understand nor accommodate its needs.

Fractured Atlas has been a vocal advocate of the Affordable Care Act (a.k.a. Obamacare) since day one. It contains some compromises and is decidedly imperfect, but it's a huge improvement over what we've been battling for the past 12 years. More to the point: health insurance is no longer an artist-specific problem. Starting today, self-employed artists can go to any of the new online insurance exchanges and have all the benefits and protections that for decades were only possible as part of a large group: coverage for pre-existing conditions, community rating, guaranteed issue, and lower premiums based on large risk pools.

Thanks to the Affordable Care Act there is no longer a need for Fractured Atlas to be in the business of providing group health insurance. As we wind down this program I want to say "thank you" to all those artists who have joined with us over the years and taken shelter under our umbrella. Together we were able not only to weather the storm but to share the relief of finally finding ourselves on a dry and level playing field. We're looking forward to helping transition our subscribers to new and better plans through the new exchanges.

Best of all, removing health insurance from our institutional plate means we can redouble our efforts on the gazillion other huge, systemic challenges that face the arts and cultural sector. Artists still need our help with liability insurance, audience development, space, and more. It's satisfying to pause and reflect for a moment on the progress we've made as a field. But then it's time to get back to work, albeit with one fewer item on our long-term to-do list.

I once belonged to Fractured Atlas for their health insurance. Thank you for 12 years of caring. Krystyna

The Arizona Dance Coalition is making connections!

The Arizona Dance Coalition recently became a member of the Americans for the Arts organization. We are now a part of the pARTnership Movement, an initiative from Americans for the Arts to reach business leaders with the message that partnering with the arts can build their competitive advantage. ADC is looking to connect with businesses to promote and advance our mission. To learn more about the pARTnership Movement, visit partnershipmovement.org/the-movement/.

The Arizona Dance Coalition will be conducting a SURVEY of its subscribers who are comprised of dancers, choreographers, educators, producers, advocates and many others in dance-related careers. In addition, fans and “supporters” subscribe to keep up with the dance events and news in Arizona. We invite you to be a part of this dance “arts” community.

The SURVEY will cover the basic “meme” questions — Who are you? Where are you from? What do you do? ... and so on. It will ask you questions specific to ADC (how can we serve you), about what you purchase (dancewear, concert tickets, massages), health & nutrition questions and insurance questions (health/dental).

The more participants in the survey, the more meaningful the results will be to get a better understanding of who “we” are and how we fit into the AZ “arts” community.

Let's find out if we—the dance community—are making a difference. Please spread the word and encourage your colleagues to subscribe. Better yet, become an ADC member and help us carry out our mission—creating connections between the dance communities and the general public in Arizona.
